

Revolution: A Reader

What Ivan Illich is calling “Vernacular,” we are calling Revolution: “any value that is homebred, homemade, derived from the commons, and that a person could protect and defend though he neither buys it nor sells it on the market.” Revolution is a value. Simple, integrated subsistence actions.

<http://revolutionreader.com>